Use of QR code tool in active teaching learning process

I always try to adapt to new technologies and implement them in my teaching methodology.
Recently I was introduced to a concept of QR code use in active teaching learning process.
Using this, you can easily share your work with the interested audience.

Anybody can access a document using a QR code. You can generate a unique QR code for our course material online using various QR code generator websites. Then you can display the same code on   notice board or share photo with your students.

Students will have to download QR scanner app from play store and just scan the code on their smartphones. The linked document will open. As simple as that. So let's make use of this technology to save paper and to save environment.
